I understand that there is a proposal to grant an exemption to the roadless rule in the North Fork Coal Mining Region. This is a bad idea. The roadless rule is in place to protect the environment in that area and was agreed upon by all parties involved. To tear up that agreement is to show bad faith in all future negotiations. Either the government can be trusted to keep its word, or it cannot be trusted at all. I am hoping that there is still honor left in the the government and the people entrusted to protect the public interest.Thank you
