Comments:

I have supported the Colorado Roadless rule for decades, including not making the Tongas National Forest an exception. Now another exception, the North Fork Coal Mine Area of the Colorado Roadless Rule is proposed. I oppose this one also. Our government must realize that climate change endangers all of life on this planet. and government organizations like the US Forest Service must do everything they can to promote the transition to clean renewable energy. Because every investment in fossil fuels is an investment in death and destruction, this proposed coal mine area exception should be denied.
