Comments:

I don't want to see any road construction taking place in this or any other area under the aegis of the UNITED STATES GOVT. for coal or any mining purposes;;; it is absurd to even to think of creating exceptions. Science has concluded definitively that it is global warming that is the scourge that awaits the planet and it is here. Power generation companies are abandoning coal, so what is the underlying reason for continuing to create exceptions for tin horn coal mining companies. I understand their logic: it is to export coal to foreign countries. Is that what is going to save the planet? Coal burnt in the U.S. or anywhere else contributes equally to global warming. So, for God's sake stop any notions of creating exceptions.
