Comments:

I strongly urge you to protect 20,000 acres of roadless forest and move Colorado to a clean energy future. Right now, Arch Coal -- a coal company that just filed for bankruptcy -- is pushing a proposal that would expand coal mining near Paonia, adding to global warming pollution and developing thousands of acres of national forest.

Burning more dirty coal is not what Colorado needs. But attempts from the coal industry to reopen a loophole in the Colorado Roadless Rule would result in 170 million tons of coal replacing renewable energy from the grid.

I strongly urge you to stop the expansion of dirty coal in Colorado.

We MUST keep climate-changing fossil fuels in the ground!
