Dear USFS,

I am writing to ask that you please withdraw the proposal to permit the loophole in the Colorado Roadless Rule that will allow Arch Coal to mine over 170 million tons of coal in Colorado's North Fork Valley.

We need clean energy solutions and allowing Arch Coal to expand mining would release millions of tons of pollution and could cost up to $13 billion in damages to our global environment and economy. Short-term corporate gains should never be more important the long-term health of our communities and our climate.

I strongly urge you to leave the Colorado Roadless Rule intact and close the Arch Coal loophole.

Thank you kindly,
Aaron Clendening
