There are very few places left that still somewhat represent an ecosystem that has survived millions of years of evolution. So once again short term lame brained humans are going to tamper with another part of nature that has nurtured them for millennia to replace it with a degraded landscape to enrich a few at the expense of the many. Of coarse, everything is done for the good of all until people wake up and find out it isn't. Will something walk through a museum someday and press a button that starts an audio-visual display telling how homo sapiens once walked the earth until after millions of little and big ignorant acts the environment wouldn't support the species anymore. A foot note in the history of the cosmos.
