To whom it may concern,

I am writing to express my objection to any attempt to diminish the amount of trails in this area.

I have been riding here for almost 20 years, and the trails have been remarkably durable for the most part. This is a unique trail system in this state, and to lose any of it would be unwarranted and a great loss to the off road community in this and adjoining states.

The attempts by out of state environmental groups to close these areas typifies the kind of ham handed out of control actions by people who will never be affected by the closures contemplated. There is an unending stream of actions taken by non residents to limit the citizens of Colorado ability to enjoy our surroundings.

There are literally millions of acres in Colorado permanently closed to off road users. To close the few areas where we can recreate is wrong.
