Comments:

After moving to the area in 1997 and then hunting since 2008, I have witnessed a drop in the the available elk and deer in the Dolores river valley. When the calico and priest gulch trails were opened to motorized vehicles, that opened the door to a once remote and rugged terrain where elk were abundant. Now you have to like hiking in shin deep trails.

Trail damage seems to be accelerated by the motorcycle use which makes recovering your harvest that much more difficult.

Alternative E seems the best if we are to have motorized vehicles on hiking trails.
