Hello,

My name is Bridget Douglas, a Virginia resident, and I am concerned with the Forest Service's Twenty year management plan. Too much logging and inadequate protection is the worst thing we can do right now. Our country and the world is running towards catastrophe - the most important thing we can do for the health of our world and us is to leave nature alone. We need trees and clean water to live. We don't need to build more. Please consider revising and really thinking about the impacts your plan will make, and act accordingly. Let's conserve and love nature, not cut it all down!

Regards,

Bridget Douglas
