Comments:

I would like to earnestly request that Alaska maintain the roadless rule for areas being considered. It is known that roads make logging more attractive and clear cutting included which is destructive to the ecosystem and animal habitat. Trees and their ecosystem are more valuable to the oxygenation of the earth, preservation of species and respect for God's green earth for which man is intended to steward. This is more crucial than using trees for profit and possibly sending to Japan to make chopsticks which they sell back in the USA! Yes we have heard of such insane practice!! Thank you for sporecustingvabd respecting our Alaska's ecosystems.
