Comments:

The American people want wilderness areas, national parks and monuments left alone for future generations. And we have every right to expect our federal agencies to protect our rights to have these places preserved for all citizens. Not for the few, the privileged, the greedy, Big Oil, or corporate interests. They already have access to huge tracts of land all over America and plenty of money to develop these areas. Sadly, when they are done, often what is left is a barren wasteland. This land should be protected from that fate! Any development in this wilderness area irrevocably alters the ecosystem of the area. Hands off! Support the people. Preserve our precious public lands.
