Comments:

The 2001 Roadless Area Conservation Rule has worked very well in protecting the few remaining roadless areas in the US, including in the Tongass National Forest. The 2016 Tongass Land Management Plan was written when this Roadless Rule was in force, and meets the needs of the various interests in Southeast Alaska. The 2001 Roadless Area Conservation Rule does not need to be modified for Alaska, and should not be changed.
