Comments:

The roadless rule was made after much debate and good scientific study. The reasons for the roadless rule remain intact. Roads damage habitat.

With the emerging IT industry, paper production has declined so much that wood chips are being diverted to Europe for bio fuel. Southeast AK forests are not needed.

Cutting our forests will create few short term jobs while threatening permanent fishing, hunting, tourism and subsistence uses. This has all been well established for many decades. It is annoying that a few profiteers are allowed to keep engaging government resources to counter their greed.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my concerns.....Mark Miller
