Comments:

I strongly encourage you to maintain the most stringent Roadless Area protections for the Tongass National Forest. I live in Washington State and have had the privilege of working in our roadless areas here. They are the pride of our state. Even with these areas intact, our salmon are struggling, a case of too little land saved too late. Start punching roads in your nice big roadless areas, and the same thing that's happening to us will happen to you. No chinook salmon? It's turning into a reality here. Keep those roadless areas roadless.
