Hello,

I come to you as a person. My interests are in the betterment of our country and our land. Our world needs us but not as badly as we need it. I write to you today to urge you to continue the Roadless Rule protection of our old-growth forest in Southeast Alaska.

Alaska is a beautiful land and one of the only places anyone can really appreciate the beauty of nature in our country. Some of the damage we have already done is so irreversible, why would we do more?

The Roadless Rule protects 9.3 million acres of breathtaking, undeveloped roadless land in the Tongass. If the Trump administration moves forward with its plan to dismantle the Roadless Rule in the Tongass, it will endanger much of the old-growth temperate rainforest remaining on Earth.

It will also destroy the only habitat the the rare Alexander Archipelago wolves have. Despite this, Alaska Department of Fish and Game will allow hunters to hunt and trap 20% of the Alexander Archipelago wolves on Prince of Wales Island while U.S. Department of Agriculture is working hard to undermine safeguards for the Tongass's centuries-old trees - the only home for these wolves and their prey.
