Comments:

We urge you to continue the roadless protection plan of our old-growth forest in Southeast Alaska.

The roadless rule protects 9.3 million acres of beautiful, underdeveloped roadless land in the Tongass.

If the Trump administration moves forward with it's plan to dismantle the roadless rule in the Tongass, it will endanger much of the old growth temperate rainforest remaining on Earth.

It will also destroy the only habitat the rare Alexander Archipelago wolves have. Despite this, Alaska department of fish and game will allow hunters to hunt and trap 20% of the Alexander Archipelago wolves on prince of Wales island, while USDA is working hard to undermine safeguards of the Tongass's centuries oldest trees. The only home for these wolves and their prey.
