Comments:

Hard to believe there's a chance that these beautiful mountains could possibly be taken away from general population of Alaska . I spent most my life riding and exploring this wonderful terrain and now that I'm older with kids I take them out there to experience it as well . Alaska has some of the most cold vicious winters around and there really isn't much to look forward too during these winter months , taking away this riding area would effect small Bussiness and the community's around them, riding for most is an escape a hobbie something you can look forward to do during these long winter months . I really hope you read each individual comment left and you will see a state come together to save what precious riding land we have
Sincerely yours BJ Griffith
