Comments:

I'm am writing do to concern about more designated wilderness around Stanley. As an avid outdoors person, I cannot support any further loss of access to our public lands. I'm a dedicated mountain biker who recently suffered the loss of some of the best backcountry trails in the country due to the White Cloud designation. This significantly limits the trails up to mountain biking, which is a low impact, human powered activity shown in studies to be equivalent to hiking and less impactful than horses. Every spring we ride from Synder Springs, up to Peach Cinnabar and drop into Yankee Fork, then kayak back to our start. These are the type of experiences, unique to Idaho, that would be lost with this designation.
