First, thank you for the opportunities to be able to participate in the revision planning process for the Salmon-Challis National Forest. I am going to begin by quoting, Roderick Frederick Nash, who said "Wilderness was the basic ingredient of American culture." I believe it is still an important part of being American and we need to continue to protect and preserve it. So, please keep the "Frank" in tact in the new plan and even consider expanding it. It is the largest contiguous Wilderness in the lower 48 and could become the largest Wilderness again. Wilderness will only become more important and necessary as the human population continues to grow and develops more corners of our planet. So, please preserve it!
