Comments:

I support strong standards in the provisions of Alternative D for the management of Gallatin National Forest. Weak standards are as bad as no standards for achieving the desired condition of self-sustaining herds of wild American Bison in the Forest.

Naturally occurring wildfires are one way to strengthen the entire ecosystem of Gallatin National Forest. It is also very helpful to the wild herds of Bison to secure connecting pathways for the bison to travel across their entire range. Strengthening provisions to remove impediments to migration would improve the desired condition of viable self-sustaining herds of wild American Bison bison bison.
