Comments:

I have resided in Southeast Alaska for more than the last half century. I have been permitted with the largest operation and greatest number of hunting and guide use areas and permits in Southeast Alaska. . These permits are carefully managed by the Alaska Depart of Fish and Game. However the continuing increase of clear cutting of Southeast Alaska's pristine Rain Forest is causing significant reductions of wildlife in this world's greatest population of these unique species of wildlife. These logging clear cuts require centuries to restore wildlife habitat. Most of this timber is shipped out of the United States with the only beneficiaries being the logging companies. Recent US Forest Service polices and regulations have addressed and protected this would's most unique rain forest. What has happened to one of the the world's greatest and most pristine environments?
