I object to the new boundaries! With the new interactive map it appears that Primrose Trail is now not accessible by snowmachine in winter time. That is the easiest way to go in to bring new riders into the sport. That's the way I have brought my girlfriend up there to see the amazing terrain that the lost lake area of the chugach has to offer. As a snowmachiner we are already so limited in this state. I've rarely seen winter hikers at all on primrose trail. What's the point of blocking it off??? Unless I'm reading the map wrong could you please clarify.

Thanks
