This is an atrocious example of the greed of big industry. Forests like this need to be protected at all costs now especially with the increaseing global climate. The importance that forests have in acting as a buffer system against the greenhouse gas effect and the protection they provide to the countless species of plants and animals that live there is essential. Letting this forest be excavated and used for development means sentencing an entire ecosystem to death. If people care about the world we live in and about continuing to have the beautiful environment we do, not to mention having the things that produce the oxygen we breathe, then they will stand up for the protection of this forest and all others like it. We will not stand for this, too much of our natural world has been taken from us already by the money hungry developers of big industry. It is time to act. Protect our forests.
