We stand at a critical juncture in this planet's history both past and yet to be written. We are at a time of recognition that living for the "now" damages the future, perhaps permanently, not only for us but for subsequent generations who will have to live and suffer with the results of our poor choices made today. Altering the roadless rule will be just one such very bad decision. Altering this roadless rule will escalate our journey to a calamitous end in ways we likely cannot imagine. But we can stop this nonsense now. Do not open this invaluable and sensitive area to logging or other myopic endeavors that will serve only to enrich a few yet harm many. These resources belong to all and should be for the good of all and not for the profits of those who find equity to be a four letter word.

The shame I feel for my species is only compounded by the knowledge that this action is even being considered. If this is allowed to take place I will lose all hope for humankind.

Do we really want to destroy our largest and oldest contiguous temperate rainforest and carbon sequestration sink for the sake of money? Once it's gone, it's gone.

Please, allow wisdom to control the upcoming decisions and make the right choice.

Sincerely,

Mark Nauman
