

Date submitted (Alaskan Standard Time): 10/23/2019 12:00:00 AM

First name: Chantal

Last name: Wikstrom

Organization:

Title:

Comments:

Do not change the Roadless Rule. Increased logging in the Tongass and its watersheds will affect vital salmon runs that are important to Alaskans and the ecology of the area. If logging is allowed, it will decrease the biodiversity of the area, increase the potential for non-native invasive species, increase carbon emissions and affect water quality. Logging in this area is unsustainable, will cost millions of dollars and affect Alaskans as well as Canadians and further down the road, everyone else on the planet as well as its wildlife.

[Position]

[Position]