To All Concerned,

Forests, especially old ones, are valuable resources. Not only for timber, but for recreation, biodiversity, and CO2 sequestration. My input to you is as a supplication, to preserve as much original forest intact as you possibly can, minimizing roads especially, which lead to all the other ills that befall nature. The best use of trees is to leave them alone; and I say this as a carpenter. The purpose of wood is to hold up leaves. Future generations will mark your actions at this juncture of human activity with careful scrutiny. Please consider our children's children's children as you plan.
