The Forests of Alaska are symbiotic with our very souls. We do all we can during this life to nurture our souls. We seek out what satisfies us deep down and gives us internal peace. We strain to see the love and goodness throughout because life is otherwise meaningless. Sometimes money, is mistaken for happiness and satisfaction. Sometimes money is mistaken for security. But truth be told money does not by provide anything but greed for more. Let's not let greed win this one. Let's give our children the chance to nurture their souls. Let's give our children the chance to make this world better. Because this is our chance. Let's leave our forests alone.
