You are willing to risk the very magic that makes your state unique and precious to the world. Short sighted thinkers and money hounds must be in control up there. Once the resources are gone, pollutants are widespread, and the tourism dries up due to the ransacking of the pristine ecosystems, there will be no way to fix it. Do you want your state to be another Kansas? Have you ever traveled and seen what happens when humans have eliminated natural forests and animals? To whom much is given, much is expected. Please protect the amazing state that you have for future generations. The money you gain now will pale in the loss of tourism that could ensue. It is immoral to corrupt possible the last truly natural place in the United States, if not the world. Show wise leadership please.
