To Whom It May Concern,

Please do NOT roll back the roadless rule in Alaska. The short term economic gain is not worth the long-term degradation of ecosystems, including habitat, water quality, recreation and tourism. In these times when we are facing huge consequences for our poor stewardship of the planet, we should be working overtime to protect environments, not remove protections. Myopia and short-sightedness in the relentless drive for profit will be the ruin of Alaska. Protect your precious resources and keep the roadless rule in place.

Sincerely,

Elspeth Trejo Savani
