I am vehemently opposed to any "logging, burning, and road building" in these areas. The detriment to habitat and biodiversity is irrecoverable from such activities. Development already encroaches on the lives of plants and animals to the extent that we are losing 200 species to extinction every single day according to expert scientists from around the world. We absolutely must reserve protected landbases in order that recovery and revitalization can occur. Forests should remain undisturbed as much as possible. These places are the only worthwhile inheritance we can leave to our children and our grandchildren, and it is our solemn duty to do so.
