I support the Tillman Trails Connectivity project and would like to see more relocations of "legacy" trails and or new trail construction along the Tillman Road Corridor.

In general, I believe we need more multi-use trails in the North River district of the George Washington National Forest. Many of the current trails do not connect directly and require the use of forest roads to make connections. As more and more local riders and out of town visitors use the North River trails, efforts to build more trails and connect trails are more important than ever.

The proposed project will be constructed on a sustainable alignment. That means it will be less steep and more accessible to more trail users, and it will require less maintenance in the long term.
