While this wilderness area is for all Americans to enjoy, in the concrete jungles of polluted America, it is of the utmost importance that we remain vigilant to preserve amazing places such as the Custer Gallatin Forest as WILD. I don't mean WILD BUT DEMINISHED BY HUMANS. These wilderness areas are some of the last wild places in the lower 48 and the home of wild animals some of which are roaming but NOT disrupted by humans. People can ride bicycles pretty much anywhere in the United States! Mountain biking is not like walking and will startle, disturb, negatively impact the area, and possibly provoke an attack by a threatened predatory animal. PLEASE - Leave this place protected from mountain bike traffic. THANK YOU!!!
