It seems appropriate to use funding to deal with issues concerning recreational use of campgrounds and trails and such, but it is not appropriate to support any logging operations. Roads or other access to forests that support logging operations is destructive and from my life long observations, often ill advised, poorly managed, and questionably justified. I also think funds should be used for actual field applied benefits and not simply as a research fund. There are many scholarly sources of relevant information that are available without spending money.
