The Max Patch area has been thrown into a terrible position. I'm afraid it is being taken advantage of by uneducated folks. They are uneducated about the care of our beautiful land and public property. I have day visited this place and thought I would return for an overnight stay. But from what I here that would be not a good plan. Too many folks allowed per night. I would still love the opportunity but I believe the only way we could do this respectfully would be to make it a limited occupation experience. Reservations only. And very limited especially on weekends. It would probably take a ranger to "police" the area, with authority to fine and remove offenders. Or whatever the rules are at other reservations only back country campsites. Thank you for your time to hear my opinion. Amy
