I am super happy to see that there is FINALLY some appreciation going into the wild places we love in the North Georgia Mountains. The deer and turkey populations could use some help. I believe doing some timber management will improve habitat for deer fawns and turkey poults for a higher survival rate.

We can also focus on some of our small mountain tributaries for better brook trout habitat. Some of our streams have an amazing population of beautiful native brook trout, but I believe there are more streams that could potentially hold a native population.
